June is National Indigenous History Month

How to engage and celebrate:

- Attend an event
- Read a book by an Indigenous author
- Watch a documentary or movie about and by Indigenous film makers
- Participate in training offered by Public Health (throughout the year) or seek out opportunities outside of the Board
- Learn about local treaties from reputable sources:
 - Robinson Huron Treaty of 1850
 - James Bay Treaty – Treaty 9
- Review the Board of Health's ReconciliAction Framework

June 6 is Anishinaabe Giiziigad

The Anishinabek Nation Grand Council confirmed through ceremony, in 2012, at Sheguiandah First Nation, that June 6 is Anishinaabe Giiziigad.

The national day celebrates and honours Anishinaabe people, community, history, traditions, and instills pride.
